Dear Jim,

You have the right woman in mind, although some of the details now seem not exactly in point in my recollection. That trip was the last time I did see her, for supper one night. I've heard from her intermittently since.

I have no idea what the charges are. She is capable~~six~~^{of} talking pretty big, but I do not think she is violent in any other way. She is in Tk 1 of the 4th floor. Her name is Dione T. Turner. They have her booked as Dione, she says. She had a previous arrest there, from which she said she was bailed. That one, I think, was some kind of drug charge. Her story is that it was a bum rap. Her reluctance to indicate what they are in this instance has me curious.

The only connection I see between the Nixon and the JFK N.O. cases is the copying by and for Nixon or details of the JFK. To the word in some cases. I don't believe there was any serious threat, do believe there are hundreds kicking around all the time that can be taken in pretended seriousness for p.r. purposes, and I believe that in this case that is what happened.

Don't try to look her up and do try to be unobtrusive. I believe arrest records, charges, things like that are public. I have no interest in anything that is not supposed to be publicly available.

I don't know if "good terms" is the way to describe my continuing relationship with Fensterwald. I still think that basically he is a very nice guy, but this doesn't cover over differences between us on what is responsible, irresponsible, reasonable and unreasonable. We work together when necessary. He was here Tuesday and asked me whwn I'd next be in Washington, which I don't know.

You read Nixon's press conference comments correctly. I was interested that the second time he said it he backed off just a bit.

What interests me very much and I'd appreciate xeroxes of if it is no real trouble for you is what you say about Roy Cohn's book, Nixon maneuvering McCarthy out of investigating CIA, etc. I don't have and haven't read Cohn's book. This could have much relevance today and in connection with some work I'm doing.

As always, haste. Pretty tired today and must get to other things.

Many thanks,
